

Pharmacogenomics (PGx)

The purpose of pharmacogenomic testing is to find out if a medication is right for each specific individual. A simple swab sample from one's cheek can help determine:

- ✓ Whether a medication may be an effective treatment for each specific individual
- ✓ What's the best dose of medication for that specific individual
- ✓ Whether an individual could/would have serious side effects from a medication(s)